We've been trading online since 1995.

Spread Betting – What's all the fuss about?

Spread Betting is a flexible way of trading on price movements of financial markets for a fraction of the capital outlay needed to trade the market directly. Also, as you don't hold the underlying investments themselves, Spread Betting allows you to take positions on market movements in either direction (ie on falling as well as rising prices).

Why Spread Betting?

With Spread Betting you have the potential to trade successfully in any market condition.

Other advantages include:

- Profits are free of UK Capital Gains Tax*
- Pay no UK Stamp Duty*
- No commission or brokerage fees (commission is generally built into the spread)
- Ability to benefit from a falling, as well as a rising, market (ie go short and long)
- Trade indices and sectors, eg FTSE 100, FX and commodities
- Instant access to worldwide financial markets, including a wide range of instruments not otherwise available to individual traders
- Geared trading (ie put up a small percentage of the total investment value) – for efficient use of capital**

How Spread Betting works:

* Tax laws are subject to change.

** A deposit of £100 will buy you the equivalent of £1,000 of a share(s). This maximises potential profits, but carries a high degree of risk.

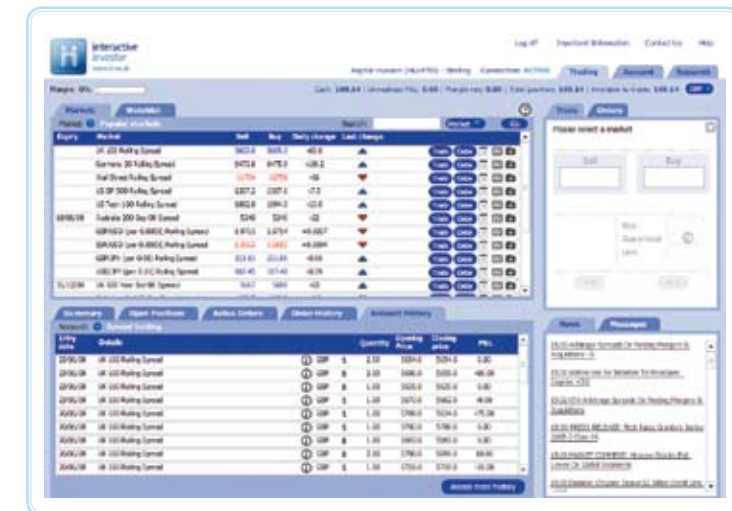

Please remember markets can move against you as well as for you, and you should only trade what you can afford to lose.

Why Interactive Investor Spread Betting?

Risk

Financial Spread Betting carries a high level of risk to your capital, therefore you should only speculate with money you can afford to lose; you may lose more than your original stake or deposit. Financial Spread Betting can be very volatile. Prices may move rapidly against your interests and resulting losses may require further payments to be made. Financial Spread Betting may not be suitable for all customers; therefore before opening a financial Spread Betting account ensure you fully understand the risks involved and seek independent advice if necessary.
